

Test for poise

If you have doubts about job candidates, say near the end of the interview, "I question whether you're qualified for this job" or "I'm not sure this position is right for you." If they get defensive or desperate, beware. But if they ask you why and confidently assert themselves, that's a point in their favor.